Government emphasis on using IT for governance is boosting e-governance in India, finds Netscribes

Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., launches a report on the E-Governance Market in India 2011 as part of Netscribes' Information Technology Series.

Mumbai, India – March 28, 2011 – Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., a knowledge consulting solutions company, announces the launch of its E-Governance Market in India 2011 report. The market in India is showing huge growth potential owing to increased government emphasis. Rise in demand for services and information by consumers across the nation has fostered the need for fast and smooth transfer of knowledge. In accordance with its plans, the Indian government initiated a National e-Governance Plan which intends to provide services to Indian consumers. This market creates huge opportunity for Information Technology (IT) sector. The IT spending of the government has also been rising due to which there is a significant opportunity for the players in that space.

The report begins with the market overview section which provides a highlight of the e-governance market in India. It depicts the IT spending of the government and its segmentation according to the sectors. This is followed by the section that provides information on the e-governance structure in India and shows the segmented structure of the market. It includes a clear description of the plans implemented in India and the region-wise progress of the initiatives. The core infrastructure requirements for the national e-governance plan have also been highlighted.

The issues related to the implementation of the various plans have been included. A brief description of the opportunities for the various sectors which stand to benefit from the successful implementation and growth of e-governance in India are provided. This is followed by the project list of the various Mission Mode Projects (MMPs) that are either in the implementation stage or have been implemented. The developments that will result owing to these projects have also been analyzed.

The competition section provides an overview of the competitive landscape in the market. It includes a brief profile of the major domestic and foreign players in the market including their financials.
