Wind Energy is largest alternative source of power in India, finds Netscribes' Wind Power report

Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., launches its Wind Power report covering the largest alternative energy market in India. Current installed and maximum potential figures indicate tremendous scope for investment. The report is part of Netscribes' Power Industry report series.

Mumbai, India – March 5, 2009 – Netscribes (India) Pvt. Ltd., a knowledge consulting solutions company, announces the launch of its Wind Power in India report. Wind is the largest segment in India's renewable energy market and the industry is growing at 34% per annum since 2004. Comparing installed and maximum potential capacity, there are tremendous opportunities for investing in this eco-friendly energy industry.

The report begins with an overview of the industry including size and growth figures. Industry drivers such as government initiatives – central and state level, cost competitiveness, and a global shift towards clean energy are discussed. Challenges include the variable nature of wind as a source of power, land procurement, and infrastructural challenges. Key trends include shift of manufacturers to the Independent Power Producer (IPP) model, increasing interest in offshore wind energy, and the entry of large energy companies. Competition covers the key manufacturers and players with their capacities as well as the wind power installations in India.

The Wind Power report is part of Netscribes' Power Industry series, which also includes Power Sector and other alternative energy sources like Nuclear and Solar Power, and Power Backup market.
